ATLONA TECHNOLOGIES SOON TO RELEASE NEW COMPOSITE + S-VIDEO + DUAL HDMI INPUT SCALER WITH HDMI OUTPUT, THE AT-HD580

Atlona Technologies, manufacturer of Audio Video connectivity products, is soon to release new Composite + S-Video + Dual HDMI input to HDMI Output Scaler, the AT-HD580

With technology constantly changing, upgrading with the times can be hard. People want the high definition experience, but would like to use the equipment they still have. Rather than allowing their older standard definition equipment to become obsolete there is the AT-HD580, Atlona's newest Composite/S-video to HDMI scaler. This unique scaling unit is designed to upscale any Standard definition and High definition video signal to an HDMI output. The AT-HD580 has the abilities to take Composite AV, S-Video with Audio and two HDMI inputs, and scale all of the signals to HDTV resolutions up to 1080p.

Atlona's AT-HD580 outputs a wide-range of HD and PC resolutions up to 1080p or 1920x1200 without signal or noise degradation. The AT-HD580 has a comprehensive on screen OSD menu and remote control that will allow users to select a variety of desired output resolutions and enables users to make necessary adjustments for the optimal picture quality. Along with being HDCP compliant, The AT-HD580 features an auto-detect capability that detects and converts Pal to NTSC or NTSC to Pal. Another perk to this feature rich scaler is its DVI compatibility. With the use of an HDMI to DVI adaptor, the HD580 allows users to feed different video signals into DVI computer monitors or projectors. This unit's compact size and numerous attributes make it the perfect product for any consumer home entertainment system or digital signage application.

Atlona's AT-HD580 Scaler will be available mid September with an MSRP of $349.00
