ATLONA TECHNOLOGIES EXPANDS TO BIGGER, GREEN-FOCUSED OFFICE LOCATED NEXT DOOR TO FELLOW TECHNOLOGY GIANTS

Atlona Technologies officially announces their move to a larger, environmentally-friendly focused office nearby other technology leaders such as Yahoo! Inc.

Atlona Technologies' explosive growth has led them make the move, literally, starting off the new year with a new office, that neighbors other high tech giants such as Yahoo! Inc. Atlona has seen steady growth in its sales and overall performance in the past few years, despite economic down turns, and is eager to expand and upgrade its operations with this move in December 2009.

The move to a new set of offices represents the outward growth the company is currently experiencing and predicting for 2010. With larger quantities of inventory in stock, a diversity of new products in the works, and the hiring of more skilled employees, the company needed a larger space to effectively maintain its performance. The move shows, not only great expansion and success, but presents an opportunity for Atlona to convert its operations to be green-oriented. The new office will focus on a paperless system for internal communications and projects. Energy efficient bulbs and a focus on eco-friendly office products will enable the company to continue with great product development and customer service while also helping to protect nature's valuable resources. The company also plans to start a program to manage company waste so that all items are disposed of in an environmentally conscious fashion rather than creating excess non-compostable trash.

The office is currently located at 2151 O'Toole Ave, San Jose, CA 95131 and will make the transition to its new headquarters at 1293 Mountain View Alviso Rd. Suite A, Sunnyvale, CA 94089 in the beginning of December of 2009.
